Before anyone else arrived at Macalester for this semester, the housing staff was busy with preparations. Friday nine people called Student Housing Administrators (S.H.A.s) arrived. They have been busy all week taking inventory of the dorms, orienting the Resident Assistants, and anticipating the arrival and check-in of another class of freshmen.

There is one S.H.A. in each dorm, except for Dupre Hall which has two because it is so large.

S.H.A.s are responsible for the physical maintenance of the dorms. If your toilet is overflowing, your sink is clogged or the washing machine is hopping around the basement, your

S.H.A. is the person to see. They will also tell you when and where you can store your suitcases and trunks.

It's a good idea to be nice to your S.H.A. When you are locked out of your room in your bathrobe at seven in the morning he or she is the person you'll have to wake up.
