

African Geographical Review
Subscription Information for Libraries and Institutions

The African Geographical Review (AGR), ISSN 1937-6812, is a peer-reviewed journal published twice per year by the Africa Specialty Group of the Association of American Geographers. The AGR is one of only two academic journals specializing in the publication of geographic scholarship related to Africa. The AGR publishes articles on Africa from scholars based all over the world, but is especially keen to support the publication of scholarship produced by geographers based at African institutions. While the journal is small, it has a long and distinguished history. As a postcolonial journal originating in the Global South, it is one of the few of its kind to have survived until present. The journal was originally founded at Makerere University in Uganda and was published from 1963 to 1976 as the East African Geographical Review. Due to political turmoil in Uganda, the journal had to suspend publication for a number of years. The journal was eventually brought to the United States by African geographers and renamed as the African Geographical Review in 2000. Complete information on the journal may be found on the AGR website (<http://www.macalester.edu/geography/agr/>).

The rate for libraries and institutions is $50 for a year and $96 for two years. For libraries which are EBSCO, Swets, Coutts Information Services, DA Information Services or Harrassowitz customers, they should contact their regional office about a paper subscription. For libraries which are not customers of one of these services, a subscription may be obtained with a credit card via Amazon.com or by sending a check to the individual subscription address below.

An electronic version of the journal is also delivered to several institutions by Academic Search Complete, a service of EBSCO publishing.

Back issues (volumes 23, 25, 26 and 27) are available for sale. Please contact the editor with requests.

African Geographical Review
Circulation: William Moseley
Department of Geography
Macalester College
1600 Grand Avenue
Saint Paul, MN 55105 USA
Tel: 651-696-6126; Fax: 651-696-6116
Email: moseley@macalester.edu