

Reading Questions

- Positions and vectors can both be specified by a set of numbers. Explain why a position and a vector are different.
- What sort of thing results from multiplying a vector by a number? How does it relate to the original vector?
- Lengths can never be negative. Explain why multiplying a vector by a negative number can still produce something legitimate.