WHY MACALESTER?

Globally minded, richly diverse, engaged in the community, our graduates are ready to start their next journey.

Macalester offers students a wealth of opportunities from internships at national nonprofits and Fortune 500 companies to hands-on experience in government and research institutions to class projects and service at community-based organizations.

Searching for talent with 21st-century skills?

Macalester students are exceptionally well prepared to contribute and flourish in a world that increasingly demands critical thinking, creativity, and analytical skills. They are collaborators, adept at pivoting and adapting to changing circumstances, and prepared for future leadership—for roles not yet even imagined.

Learning in an environment that draws students from every corner of the globe and all walks of life exposes students to other viewpoints and ways of seeing the world, an essential skill in today's market place.

Where changemakers get their start.

In St. Paul and Minneapolis, our students seek out and explore potential career paths. After four years, students have spent time partnering with nonprofits on issues like food security, interning at places like 3M, and working with local startups or in labs on projects like solar cell improvements.
