Why Recruit at Macalester?

Each year, over fifty organizations visit Macalester to seek highly intelligent, engaged, and experienced students to contribute to their organization and 2,500 post jobs. Though many are looking for full-time candidates, we host recruiters filling a variety of positions, including:

Internships
During the school year, students generally seek part-time internships in the Twin Cities. To gain further experience during the summer and January breaks, our students accept challenging full-time and part-time roles all over the world.

Summer Jobs
Recruiters seek students for summer positions in education, youth development, finance, technology, and more. Streamline your hiring process by presenting and scheduling interviews for the same day.

Entry-Level
Macalester students seek positions in a wide range of fields, but many are specifically interested in fields related to public policy, sustainability, public health, geography, and publishing.

Additional benefits
If you choose, the Career Development Center can assist in your candidate search by:

- Marketing the position to targeted students, faculty, and campus organizations
- Collecting applications electronically, forwarding them to your organization as a batch
- Reserving space for your on-campus presentation, informational session, and interviews

What makes Macalester students unique?

Engaged citizens
- 94% of students volunteered during the 2011-2012 school year

Experienced Employees
- Over 70% of the Class of 2012 completed an internship or similar experience

World-class leadership
- About 60 percent of Macalester students study abroad for academic credit
- Internationalism and U.S. Multiculturalism requirements expose all students to current issues facing national and international populations

Diversity of study
- The quantitative reasoning requirement ensures that all students obtain basic logical, numerical, and statistical analysis skills
- Courses that meet the writing requirement teach students how to construct an argument and adapt writing to fit its audience and context
- The language requirement states that all students must be proficient in a language that is not their native tongue

If you have questions about the recruiting process, please contact Linda Schindler, Recruiting Coordinator at (651) 696-6296 or schindler@macalester.edu.