Summer 2017 Teaching Fellow

Description:

Breakthrough is looking for hard-working undergraduates to join our classrooms this summer. We seek undergraduates from all academic backgrounds – both those planning careers in education and those who are considering it for the first time. Breakthrough teaching fellows have a deep commitment to social justice and passion for working with our inspiring middle-school students. Our teaching fellows must be committed to personal growth and comfortable working in a fast-paced, collaborative environment.

You'll join a supportive community where you'll receive extensive training, continuous support, and the opportunity to lead a classroom. Throughout the summer, you will assume leadership roles and practice persistence, creativity, flexibility, and problem-solving. Under the guidance of experienced educators, you will work alongside other exceptional teaching fellows to plan and teach classes, manage a classroom, advise students, lead field trips, and develop as a teacher and leader. Your summer at Breakthrough will help prepare you for a career in education and will grow professional skills that will help you stand apart in other professions.

As a teaching fellow, you will:

- Participate in a summer teaching and leadership experience with a living stipend provided
- Receive 100+ hours of teaching and leadership training
- Teach at one of our 24 affiliates throughout the U.S. and in Hong Kong
- Learn lesson planning, classroom management, instructional strategies, feedback techniques, and other essential teaching tools
- Teach core academic classes (math, science, writing, literature) and design enrichment classes (e.g., foreign language, dance, art)
- Lead family conferences and participate in team meetings
- Receive coaching from professional educators
- Collaborate with other exceptional undergraduate teaching fellows in a challenging but fun and supportive environment
- Work with a diverse group of highly motivated students from under-resourced communities
