

CSE Style

I. In-Text Citations

There are two methods to mark citations in the body of a CSE-style paper: citation-sequence format and name-year format. Check with your professor to determine the preferred method for a course or discipline.

A. Citation-Sequence Format

Use a superscript number ^(¹) to mark each new citation in your paper. The numbers will correspond to a reference list at the end of the paper. Mark subsequent citations of the same source with the same superscript number as its first citation.

B. Name-Year Format

Place the author's last name and the year of publication in parentheses at the end of each citation in the body of your paper. For example: (Jones 2007). If you've already used the author's name in a signal phrase, list only the publication date in parentheses. For more than three authors, list the first author followed by the phrase and others.

For either format:

- Use a signal phrase to introduce a quotation (e.g. According to Jones . . .)
- When referring to an author in the body of your paper, use only the last name.

II. References

The list of references contains complete publication information for every source cited in your paper. For citation-sequence format, list the sources in the order in which they first appear in the text. For name-year format, list the entries in alphabetical order. Place the list on a separate page at the end of your paper, under the heading References. Single-space each entry, but double-space between entries. Indent the second and subsequent lines of each entry by five spaces (1/2 inch).

Include the following information for each entry: author name (last name, no comma, first and middle initials with no punctuation); title(s); publication information and date; and page numbers.) Note that if you are using the name-year format, the publication date is listed after the author's name, rather than with the rest of the publication information.

Entries for Books

Book with one author:

Entries for Electronic Sources

In addition to author and/or title(s), whenever possible include date and place of publication or copyright, date of last update, and date that you accessed the source. Always specify [Internet] immediately after the title of the site, email message, or online database and provide a URL at the end of each entry.

Web Site:

- Human Anatomy Online [Internet]. Phoenix (AZ): Intellimed, Inc.; c1999-2004 [updated 2004 Dec 15; cited 2007 Feb 20]. Available from: <http://www.innerbody.com/index.html>

III. Paper Format

- A CSE-style title page includes (1) the paper title and author's name centered one-third of the way down the page and (2) the course name, professor's name, and submission date centered on the bottom third of the page.
- All pages of the text, including the title page, should be numbered in the upper right-hand corner. Place your last name before page numbers.

Writing References

- Most CSE-style papers include a brief abstract (approx. 100 words). Place the abstract on a separate page immediately following the title page and under the heading Abstract. Double-space and do not indent the first line.
