Hubert H. Humphrey Distinguished Visiting Professorship in Economics

The Economics Department at Macalester College seeks to hire a distinguished scholar and teacher to hold the Hubert H. Humphrey visiting professorship during the 2021-22 academic year. The Humphrey Professorship was established in 1968 to strengthen international education at Macalester by bringing to campus distinguished individuals in fields relating to international affairs. Accordingly, we seek an economist whose research has a strong international component and who can offer courses that reinforce the College’s strength in internationalism. The candidate’s courses and research interests will ideally complement the teaching and scholarship of the permanent faculty in the Economics Department. Ph.D. required. Responsibilities include teaching a total of three undergraduate courses.

Benefits include health insurance, a moving subsidy, professional development funds, and rent-free occupancy of a comfortable furnished home near campus, with all utilities paid. To apply, please visit https://academicjobsonline.org/ajo/jobs/18045 and submit a letter of application, C.V., two syllabi (or syllabi outlines) for classes you would like to teach, and a short teaching statement. Please arrange for two letters of recommendation to be uploaded to the site. Applications from international candidates residing in the United States are welcome.

For any questions about the position, please contact Professor Sarah West, Economics Department Chair, at wests@macalester.edu or 651-696-6482. Applications received by February 24, 2021, will receive first consideration.

Macalester College is a highly selective, private liberal arts college in the vibrant Minneapolis-Saint Paul metropolitan area, with a population of approximately three million people and home to numerous colleges and universities, including the University of Minnesota.
